

DIY craftivism templates and instructions for Cervical Screening Awareness Week, 14th-20th June 2021

These instructions are a suggested guide as a way to get involved with the #weareallsmeaready campaign but you can do so whichever way feels right for you.

The campaign uses craftivism (craft + activism) as an effective way to spread a message in a kind, supportive and eye-catching approach to help raise awareness of the importance of smear tests.

You can print out these templates below (or make your own) and create your own mini pants from fabric, paper or card, etc - it's entirely up to you! feel free to add any extra decorations you may have,

Then take a photo of your mini pants and share on your social media with #weareallsmeaready during Cervical Screening Awareness Week (June 14-20th), To help explain what the pants are for you can use the information label or copy and paste to help spread the message and potentially save lives.

Don't forget to write your first name at the bottom of the information label!

Show us your (mini) pants on social media with #weareallsmeaready

When was your last smear test?

We are all smear ready is a craftivist campaign to raise awareness of cervical screenings, encourage conversations and potentially save lives.

With these pants, we want to remind you that it doesn't matter what your lady garden looks like, nurses have seen every variety ;)

NOW...

- make sure you book your appointment (if you haven't already)
- take a photo of these pants,
- then share on social media with #weareallsmeaready

& let's keep reminding our friends & family members that cervical screening (smear tests) is the best protection against cervical cancer.

These pants have been crafted with love by...
